Grierson To Speak At PCA Meeting

Jack Grierson, Hillsboro, Ohio, will be the principal speaker at the twenty-first annual meeting of the Production Credit Association to be held Friday Night, November 12, at the Mayfield High School Building. This meeting serves PCA members from Calhoun, Marshall and Graves Counties. Mr. Grierson will make a talk that will be both educational and inspiring to farm people. He was born on a farm near Mayville, Kentucky, however, he took his college work at Chattanooga, Tennessee, where he received a degree in law. Shortly after he was married, he purchased a farm in southern Ohio. He then accepted a position with the Extension Department of Ohio and for many years served as a speaker on the Farmers' Institute Program. In 1943, he helped to organize some of the Production Credit Associations and later served as a PCA field representative in his local county. In 1946, he accepted the position he now holds with the Corporation as fieldman for Ohio. At the close of the meeting, twelve door prizes will be given to the members or their wives who hold the lucky tickets. They must be present in order to receive one of these prizes. Alvis E. Jones, Field Representative of this county urges all PCA families to attend this meeting.

British Bid For Chinese Red Trade

By CHARLES M. McCANN
United Press Staff Correspondent
British industrialists are about to make their biggest bid to date to increase their trade with Communist China. A 33-man delegation is to leave for Peking this week to study the possibilities of increasing exports to and imports from the "People's Republic." The delegation represents more than 100 companies which cover a wide field of British industry. In its negotiations, the delegation will be bound by the British government's commitments against the export of strategically valuable goods to Red China. But the mission has the blessing of the Foreign Office and the Board of Trade, which in Britain is a government department. Stunned From Geneva There seems to be a strong feeling in both industry and the government that British-Chinese trade can be increased materially without violating the strategic goods ban. The present mission stems from last summer's conference in Geneva which brought the end of the war in Indochina. Negotiations were conducted there between representatives of British industry and members of the Chinese Red delegation. The Peking government has said that it is interested in getting both machinery of all sorts and consumer goods. It gives priority to any supplies which will help it in its ambitious five-year plan of industrialization. Communist China now conducts nearly 75 per cent of its foreign trade with the Soviet Russian bloc. But there are indications that the Russians have given the Chinese little beyond military supplies and only a small quantity of raw materials and machinery. British Experts Pessimistic British exports to Red China are now running at the rate of about $19,500,000 a year. Exports from China are at the rate of about $23,500,000. This, of course, is a mere trickle. The British delegates will know, when they arrive in Peking, what they can supply the Chinese Reds. What they have to find out is what the Peking regime can send to Britain to pay for the things it wants. Many British experts are pessimistic over trade possibilities. They hold that the Reds have little with which they could balance a big flow of trade. Chinese Communist authorities are reported to have hinted that they would want credit arrangements for the possibility of a dramatic increase in British-Chinese trade. But British traders are trying to establish a basis for the future.

Registered Cow Hit By Car

Two accidents were reported this week and by State Trooper Guy C. Turner, involving livestock. Mrs. Mae Beagle Mobley, of 512 Broad Street, was traveling along the Hazel Highway Saturday evening about 6 o'clock when she struck a cow which was in the highway. The cow was being unloaded behind the home of Grover Wood James, when she broke loose and ran into the highway. Richard James, son of Grover, was the owner of the registered cow. The animal suffered from one or more broken legs. She was slaughtered and dressed immediately. Damages to the Mobley Car, a 1952 Kaiser Sedan, was estimated at $200 to $250. Miss Sheila Mobley who was in the car with her mother, received slight injuries in the accident as she was thrown against the windshield. The second accident happened last night as James Edwin Hunter of Princeton was traveling west on Highway 94, about 11 miles east of Murray. Three horses, owned by Thomas Dooey of Dexter, wandered into the highway and were struck by the Hunter car. The horses had wandered away from the Dooey home and become lost. The Hunter car, a 1948 Chevrolet, was a complete loss, as the front end was demolished and the top was caved in. Injuries to the horse were not determined, however, none of them were killed.

Detection Of Diabetes To Be Featured

NEW YORK (AP)—Health Department officials, today, blamed a defective water heater for the deaths of 10 persons, including six children. Jerome Trichter, assistant health commissioner, said the second-hand water heater in the three-room apartment where the victims died Sunday had generated enough poisonous fumes "to kill a squadron of men in half an hour." Trichter said the possibility of "negligence" would be referred to the district attorney's office. The victims of the tragedy in the tenement-flat near Times square were discovered by a neighbor early Sunday when a thin coil of smoke was noticed escaping from beneath the door. The water heater was burning at full force, a mop was burning and the family of eight persons and two overnight guests were found dead in their beds, victims of carbon monoxide poisoning. The dead were identified as Eulberges Gonzales, 33, his wife Victoria, 29, their six children aged 4 months to 10 years, and Dominguez Motos, 31, and his wife, Armetta, 27.

Should Have Returned Fire Says Commanding Officer

By LEROY HANSEN
United Press Staff Correspondent
TOKYO (AP)—The pilot of an American B29 plane, shot down by Soviet MIG fighters Sunday with the loss of one life, today was criticized by his commanding officer for not ordering his crew to return the Red fire. Col. Albert Welch, of Dalton City, Ill., said the Americans were under orders to fire if fired upon. He said "there must have been some misunderstanding" and predicted a "different reaction" if the Russians repeat their offense.

The second service will be at 2:00 conducted by Rev. Bill Clark, Thomas Baptist Minister. The Max H. Churchill Funeral Home is in charge of the arrangements.

Senators Angry

It drew angry reaction from U. S. senators in Washington. Senate Republican Leader William F. Knowland, who has called for a diplomatic break with Russia, said there will be more American planes shot down unless more drastic action is taken. Feith said he was "certain" the MIGs flew into Japanese territory to attack his plane.

NEW YORK AP—Fearless Fralay's facts and figures:

The American League is expected to approve the shifting of the Philadelphia Athletics to Kansas City on Monday, and shortly thereafter you can expect deals in which the As will be helped by the New York Yankees.

Arnold Johnson, leader of the Kansas City movement, is a close friend of Yankee owner Dan Topping. The Yankee boss knows that the league has to be strengthened and has indicated that he will help the As get players. One of these is expected to be Elston Howard, great Negro catcher in the Yankee chain.

Ed Danowski, the Fordham football coach, had nothing but praise for his mauling gridder after they were swamped by Miami, 73-7.

"I don't blame my kids for not tackling those fast Miami ball carriers," Danowski insisted. "They were going by so fast most of the time I couldn't see 'em myself."

Golf Courses Increase
Golf course construction this year set a new post-war record with 12 new courses opened for play, 108 under construction and 389 being planned. California led the national construction activity with 13 new courses opened, 37 under construction and 42 in the planning stage.

Speaking of golf courses, Pan American World Airways has a brand new course at Wake Island which sets a world record for sand traps and water hazards. Called the "Wake Island Low Tide Country Club," it is completely under water at high tide. That's when the bonefish anglers take over. When the tide goes out, the tidal flat "greens" seldom need rolling. Incidentally, I know at least one wife who thinks golf course ought to be under water all the time.

Not So Weak Browns
When the Cleveland Browns made a poor start this fall, most of their National Football League rivals hoped they finally were ready to be taken to the cleaners. But the New York Giants, who have beaten the Browns more often than any Eastern Division club, aren't buying any.

"They don't look any weaker to us," Coach Jim Lee Howell said momentarily after taking a 24-14 licking.

Lehigh has lost four of its six football games this fall, but isn't unduly perturbed. Bob Kirkpatrick, editor of the Bethlehem, Pa., Globe-Times, advises that this week two of Lehigh's best linemen missed the first three days of practice because they were on a three-day field trip to various industrial firms in the interest of mechanical and electrical engineering.

"I wonder what a lot of coaches would say," Kirkpatrick asks with tongue in cheek. "If some professor yanked two of his boys out of practice merely in the interests of education?"

Which certainly calls for three cheers for Lehigh!

UK CIRCULAR DEALS WITH BEEF BUYING

Things are not always what they seem when it comes to buying beef economically, says Dr. James D. Kemp, assistant professor of animal husbandry at the University of Kentucky. Some cuts, which are priced cheaply, such as short ribs of beef, may have such a high percentage of bone and fat that the price per edible pound is far beyond what the housewife thinks she is paying.

If high food value for the money spent is the objective, choose leaner, less tender cuts from the chuck, shoulder, rump or round. While some fat, especially marbling, is desirable and adds to the flavor, too much fat may be a waste.

If price is no object, and the meat is to be used for a special occasion, a standing rib roast is tender, has good flavor, is more attractive than a chuck roast and may be carved more easily, says this beef authority.

In a new circular, "Buy Beef Wisely and Use It Well," Dr. Kemp presents a chart by which the housewife can determine quickly and easily from the price per pound what the actual cost is per pound of edible meat. Well illustrated with photographs of cuts of beef, the circular suggests proper methods of preparation.

A copy of the circular No. 323, may be had from offices of county Agricultural or home agents, or from the UK College of Agriculture and Home Economics, Lexington.

FLEMING DAIRYMEN MAKE IMPROVEMENTS

Progress in dairying in Fleming county is reported by UK Farm Agent James I. Stephens.

A dairy set up recently completed by Charles Thoroughman and Son includes a four-stall milking parlor and feed and milk rooms built on the side of a tobacco barn. Walk through doors with feed boxes on them save labor.

A 75-ton trench silo was built this fall and filled with sorghum. It is equipped for self-feeding. Water for both barn and house is provided in a rectangular concrete block cistern equipped with pump and filter. The Thoroughmans did most of the work in remodeling their kitchen, putting in cabinets and sink.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Gittum, also enrolled in the Farm and Home Development Program, have added a home made brick silo and walk through milking parlor. Mr. Gittum did the work himself.

A cross-tied board lined trench silo 20 by 100 feet was made by C. E. Gorman. There is also a 400-ton lined trench silo on the Gorman farm. Both silos were filled with grass silage, to be self-fed.

Other Fleming county farmers using trench silos include V. C. Razor and Charles E. Cowan and Son. L. M. Newman has a bunker silo and Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Daulton built a silo out of straw to hold the overflow from a tower silo.

Sodium bisulfite was used to help preserve grass silage in 10 silos.

How To Help Your "Man" Buy a Suit

Since nine out of ten women influence the suit-buying decisions of their husbands, here are authoritative tips by the American Society of Designers on the fine points of proper fit every woman should know, to help a man select his suit and insure good appearance and long-wearing values.

This is your objective—a suit that combines correct, made-to-measure fit, with comfort, casual elegance and good looking appearance.

Select the type desired from large assortment of made-to-measure fabrics.

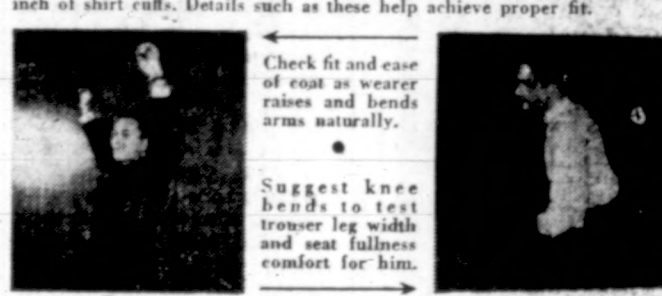

Make sure fabric is becoming by draping it over one shoulder.

(Left) Exact, individual measurements should be taken by a skilled, made-to-measure craftsman. (Center) Trousers leg cuff should barely touch top of shoes. (Right) Coat sleeves should show only one-fourth to one-half inch of shirt cuffs. Details such as these help achieve proper fit.

Check fit and ease of coat as wearer raises and bends arms naturally.

Suggest knee bends to test trousers leg width and seat fullness comfort for him.

Down Concord Way

Thanksgiving time is just around the corner again, and regardless of Democrats or Republicans are in power, we have lots to be thankful for.

We do not want to be so selfish as to think that just because the two servicemen in our family have just finished their terms in Uncle Sam's service that all the boys are back home now. We know they are not, but at least, they are not fighting.

We may not all be drawing salaries either, but just so long as we are well and free to go about as we please, we are rich and instead of grumbling we should count our blessings every day.

I just read the story, "This Farm For Sale" by Jessie Stuart in Progressive Farmer.

Although I'm not teaching now, I wanted so much to hear Mr. Stuart's address at FIDEA and since I have read a few articles since I hope to see him before he leaves Murray Hospital.

I wish we could have talked personally with three of our Concord boys, Larry and Roy Garland, and Shirley Rust, as well as Clara Self, four ninth graders who have decided to quit school.

I had a chance to become very personally acquainted with these young people as I tried to serve as their seventh grade teacher, and I know that they are individuals worth some very painstaking guidance.

Noble Lovins, of Detroit, is one man who writes from a big town of having a son, Eddie, an interested church worker, and the parents are so glad that the boy is participating so wholeheartedly in the little Highland Park Church activities.

I have always believed that with the proper encouragement, boys and girls of big cities, as well as of the country could find wholesome entertainment.

We are sorry that some of our elderly little old ladies, Emma Nance, Mrs. Virgie Lovins, Mrs. Ida Strader and Mrs. Mary McClure are not feeling very well of late.

Sulphur Spring Church contributed $20.00 on Sunday to buy coal for Mr. Dean Russell's family.

Pete Wisheart was honored with a birthday supper last Thursday evening. Mr. and Mrs. Bernice Wisheart, Mr. and Mrs. Floyd McClure and Mr. and Mrs. Rainey Lovins were present.

Joe Pat Coleman has been suffering from strep throat recently. Mrs. Ramond Fielder is able to be about again after a long siege of hepatitis.

We hope all the sick are soon well and that the sun will soon shine out again after all the cloudy weather.

Diseases May Run In Family

NEW YORK — Some forms of heart disease and cancer, as well as diabetes and mental disease, have a tendency to run in families, according to the statisticians of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company. New evidence of such tendency has recently become available from a study of the mortality experience of a large number of life insurance companies from 1935 to 1949.

Mortality among these policyholders who had two or more close relatives with heart disease acquired before age 60 was about 40 percent higher than that for standard risks, and most of the excess mortality was attributable to the high death rate from diseases of the heart and vascular system.

For those with a family history of heart disease who were also slightly overweight or had a slight blood pressure elevation, the mortality was about 70 percent higher than the average, whereas among those free of the overweight or blood pressure impairment, the mortality was nearly 25 percent above the average, according to the experience of two companies.

Among policyholders reporting two or more cases of cancer in parents or other members of the family under 60, mortality from cancer was more than twice the average. Policyholders with even a single diabetic at any age in the family experienced a mortality from diabetes nearly twice the average.

The study also showed that mortality among the insured persons who reported two or more cases of mental disease in the family before age 60 was slightly above average for all causes combined, and was several times the normal for suicide, a fairly reliable index of mental disorder.

Other studies also provide evidence that persons with a good family history of longevity live longer, on the average, than those with a poor record of parental longevity. "While the effect of family history on longevity is appreciable," the statisticians observe, "it is nevertheless small compared with the gains in longevity observed through the improvement in environment since the turn of the century."

HERE'S HOW

... MAKE A CAR-TOP CARRY-ALL

A detachable carry-all to fit standard car-top carriers provides extra space for luggage. The box is made of panels of glued-up 1-inch lumber, with sides from 14 to 18 inches high. Make a frame of 1 by 2-inch lumber for the doors. Mortise and tenon or dowel joints will make a strong frame. Use waterproof glue. The sides and bottom are joined with wood screws and glue. The doors are attached to the frame with 1 1/2 by 2-inch butt hinges. Slide bolts, centered at the bottom of each door, fit into metal plates as shown. On the bottom of the box, four 1 by 1 by 36-inch strips are fastened with 14-inch screws, and spaced so that your carrier fits snugly between them. Fasten eight 1 by 1 by 2-inch blocks to the carrier bars, each pair being 36 inches apart. Then add four slide bolts to the 1-inch strips and slide into their matching plates on the blocks. These bolts hold the box to the carrier. A canvas top is fastened over the box when in use.

Two Months of Flowers in Spring, All from Bulbs

Hyacinths, early single and double tulips and daffodils flower at the same time.

For two months in the spring, fall planted bulbs supply most of the color in garden borders, with the least care of any flowers, because they blossom before weeds grow, or insects prey, or drought injures garden plants.

A flowering bulb is a package deal. It contains, like seed, an embryo plant, plus food enough to nourish it until it produces a flower. The first flower will bloom with very little help from the soil it grows in, though feeding gives a larger flower. After blooming it requires extra food to develop a vigorous new bulb for the next year's flower. If the soil is well drained and fertile, or plant food is supplied to make it so, tulips and daffodils will live for many years, giving a harvest of spring beauty every year.

The way the flowers are arranged, and the careful selection of varieties which give a succession of bloom over two months, are more important to a good display than planting large numbers of bulbs. In the early spring a small number of snowdrops, scillas, and crocuses, will make a big impression upon your family and friends, because they bloom when there are no other flowers to compete for admiration. Two dozen bulbs of each planted in groups will produce more conversation than many times that quantity of summer flowers. Snowdrops bloom as soon as the ground thaws out, and scillas, bluer than violets, then the blue and yellow crocuses, follow in succession.

Daffodils are the first major flowers of the spring. They are also the longest-lived in the average garden. In well drained locations bulbs will usually multiply, and need not be lifted until they crowd.

Eastern Is OVC Football Champion

By UNITED PRESS
Eastern Kentucky's unbeaten Maroons stood today as new football champions of the Ohio Valley Conference, thanks in large part to a 160-pound quarterback and a bunch of hard-nosed linemen.

That combination carried Eastern to a 21-0 victory over previously undefeated Western Kentucky at Bowling Green Saturday, making a clean sweep for the Maroons over the other five conference members this season.

Jim Hanlon, from Ghent, Ky., is the lightweight signal caller who directed the Maroons' offense and figured in all three touchdowns himself. He threw a touchdown pass to end Tom Schulte of Newport in the first period, another to halfback Dutch Greene in the second period, and scored himself on a 34-yard punt return in the third period.

Those Eastern linemen, meanwhile, were holding Western's previously potent offense to 61 yards rushing and 54 yards by passing, never letting the Hilltoppers inside the Eastern 40-yard line.

The Maroons, with only Louisville yet to play at Richmond this week, have won seven games and played a 13-13 tie with Toledo. In other Kentucky college games over the weekend, Kentucky, coached by Vanderbilt, 19-7, scoring all three touchdowns in the second period, Louisville trampled Morehead, 24-6, Centre defeated Sewanee, 21-7, Murray State lost an OVC tilt to Middle Tennessee, 21-13, and Kentucky State was rapped by Central State of Ohio, 26-12.

Great Scot . . .

... EXCLAIMS Great Dane Dusty, a mighty proud papa in his Chicago home, for he and the Mrs. set a national record with litter of 20, according to canine experts who checked the books. Previous high for pedigreed dogs is 18. Family belongs to Eugene Powers. (International)

Tennessee, 21-13, and Kentucky State was rapped by Central State of Ohio, 26-12. Louisville's young Cardinals rolled up 18 points on the even younger Morehead Eagles in the first half, and coasted to a 24-0 Homecoming victory. The puncheonless Eagles wound up with a net yards gained of 70 as they took their 16th straight defeat over a two-season span.

Murray scored first on Middle Tennessee, but the Raiders held a 14-6 lead at halftime. Murray scored again in the second half and converted, but Middle Tennessee clinched matters with a fourth-period touchdown.

Panama Canal To Be Cleared

BALBOA, Canal Zone (AP)—A dipper dredge worked today to clear away the approximately 5,100 cubic yards of rock which slid into the Panama Canal at Gaillard Cut and blocked one-half the channel.

The huge mass of rock and mud tumbled from the north end of Contractors Hill into the vital waterway sometime during Thursday night. It was discovered at dawn Friday by an inspection launch.

The slide narrowed the channel from its normal 300 feet to 175 feet and created a one-way bottleneck in ship traffic.

BIG CHOICE OF MEATS

FOR NOVEMBER MEALS
Kentucky housewives will have a wide choice of meat items for their November meals, and plenty of turkey for Thanksgiving, according to the University of Kentucky
College of Agriculture and Home Economics.

The Agriculture Marketing Service's list of plentiful foods for November says that supplies of broilers and fryers, beef and turkeys are heavy. Also in the plentiful class for November are porrozen fish and shrimp.

Broilers and fryers were marketed in large numbers in October,
the college's statement pointed out.
With quick replacement, continuing heavy in early fall, broiler production was expected to continue at a high level well into November. Beef production is heavy because of seasonally heavy cattle marketings, and a re mi-July the number of hogs slaughtered has climbed above last year's rate. Large numbers of hogs are being marketed this fall because of the 13 per cent increase in the spring crop.
This year's record turkey crop of 61,045,000 birds is about 9 percent larger than last year, and retail markets are expected to be amply supplied with both large and small breed birds.
Other foods expected to be plentiful in November are peas, rice, dry beans, almonds, walnuts, filberts, dried prunes.

'ICE BATH' BEFORE OPERATION

DRAMATIC 'ICE BATH' surgery technique is shown underway in Washington, where physicians saved a 4-year-old girl from probable early death by closing a large hole in her heart. The operation was preceded by the ice bath, which lowered her body temperature 18 degrees below normal. Ten such operations have been performed in the capital's Children's hospital. The patient here is an 8-year-old boy. (International Soundphoto)

CHAPTER THIRTY-TWO FOOTSTEPS sounded on the porch, and the door opened. Behind me Eileen gasped. "Papa!"
When I looked up, she was in the embrace of Jake Fortune.
I stared at him stupidly. His heavy red face beneath the cream-colored hat held a sober and serious look as he gazed at Earl Seltzman on the floor. Then his gray eyes, wide-spaced, like his daughter's, met mine over her shoulder,
and silently asked a question.
"Papa, papa," Eileen sobbed,
and he held her close.
"I had to hit him," I said. "He pulled a gun on me, and he was jittery and ready to shoot. Thanks for slugging your car door. It gave me a chance to jump him."
I stood up wearily. "Earl pulled a gun on you? Why?"
"Papa," Eileen sobbed. He patted her shoulder.
"You say as well know," I said.
"He shot Ralph Hollis—on purpose
—and he killed Rex Bishop, because the old man caught him slugging at me."
His frown deepened. "But I thought that Judy—" "
"She's out of it," I said, and I looked around for the telephone.
"I've got to get the sheriff out here."
Eileen left her father's arms and kneel beside Earl Seltzman. Her fingers caressed his thin, slack face
as she murmured, "It's all right, Earl, don't you worry."
Jake Fortune gazed at me blankly. "So Earl really tried to kill Ralph?"
"I'll tell you about it later.
Where's the phone?"
"In the kitchen," he shook his head and swore softly.
"Watch him," I said.
He nodded.
The phone was on a shelf above
the kitchen sink. I asked for Sheriff John Morisy and got him almost immediately.
"This is Jim Bennett."
"Yes," he said quickly.
"Haven't you gone to bed yet?"
"I'm in bed now. The phone's right beside me."
"End of the hunt," I said. "It was Earl Seltzman. You can forget about going to Cleveland.
Earl will have a rifle some place,
and I'll match the bullet I dug out of the tree, and the bullet in Rex Bishop. I've got Earl out here at Jake Fortune's place."
The line was dead for a moment, and then I heard him sigh.

"I see," he said in his grave, quiet voice. "I'll be right out."
"Thanks," I hung up and looked at the gun I'd taken from Earl Seltzman. It was a .38 caliber Colt.
The clip was full, with a cartridge in the firing chamber. I put it in my overcoat pocket, along with my own .38, and went back to the living room.
Seltzman was sitting in a chair,
leaning forward with his forehead
in a palm. There was a bluish spot on the side of his jaw, and it appeared to be swelling. I rubbed my knuckles reflectively. Eileen was standing beside him, a hand on his shoulder, a maternal, tender look on her face. Jake Fortune hadn't moved from his spot by the door. He said, "It's cold in here, I'd better go down and stir up the fire." As he moved across the room, he said to his daughter,
"Eileen, make us some coffee." He went out through the kitchen, and I heard him going down some steps. Eileen left Seltzman's side and moved into the kitchen. She didn't look at me.
"Earl," I asked, "where's the rifle?"
He didn't answer.
"The rifle, Earl."
"I don't have a rifle," he muttered.
"You may as well tell me," I said. "We'll find it anyhow, and you'll save the sheriff a lot of trouble. Just tell him the whole thing. Earl, it'll be easier that way—for you, for everybody."
"You can't arrest me," he said sullenly.
"Yes, we can."
"I want a lawyer," he said.
"All right."
"I'll talk to him," he said, "and nobody else. Franklin Hoffman, in Cleveland."
"The sheriff will get him for
you. I'm sorry I had to hit you again, but you shouldn't have pulled a gun on me."
He took a deep breath. "I—I didn't know what I was doing. Between the two of you, Eileen and you, I—I lost my head, I guess.
I didn't intend to shoot you. I just wanted to scare you, to keep you away from me. I wanted time to think about what you said, and what Eileen said, and—oh—"
He began to sob, a dry, rasping sound.
Dimly below me I could hear Jake Fortune shaking the ashes out of the furnace. Eileen was making domestic sounds in the kitchen. Presently I smelled coffee brewing, and Eileen came into the room. She went past me, pausing long enough to rest a hand gently on Seltzman's head, and then went up the stairs. Seltzman, quiet now, took off his glasses and began to wipe them with a handkerchief. His thin face looked naked and pinched, rodent-like, and he avoided my gaze. I heard Jake Fortune come up the basement steps, and his voice came from the kitchen, "Coffee's ready."

"In a minute," I said.
"I heard a car stop outside, and I got up and opened the door for the sheriff. His grave eyes glanced at Earl, and then at me directly.
"I'm taking your word for this."
"I'll be responsible," I said, handing him Seltzman's little automatic. "Assault with intent to kill.
That's enough to book him. I'll be down later. He wants his lawyer—a man named Franklin Hoffman in Cleveland."
Morisy nodded and spoke gently to Seltzman, "Come on, Earl."
"Can you handle him alone?" I asked.
"He won't cause any trouble.
I've known Earl all my life.
From the kitchen Jake Fortune said quietly, "Hello, John."
The sheriff nodded, tight-lipped, said, "How are you, Jake?" and laid a hand gently on Seltzman's shoulder.
Earl got slowly to his feet, picked up his heavy red coat from the chair, and moved to the door, not looking at any of us. The sheriff said, "Better put on your coat, Earl. It's cold out."
Obediently Seltzman hunched into the coat. Morisy opened the door. Seltzman came down the stairs. She was wearing the bluish tweed suit with the frilly white blouse, and was carrying a coat over her arm. She had applied lipstick to her small, thin mouth, her blond hair was smoothly combed, and she looked quite attractive, in spite of the red puffiness of her eyes. She said to Morisy, "I want to go with him."
"All right," Eileen, he said gravely, "if you like."
Seltzman stood woodenly, his head down.
I said to the sheriff, "His car's around in back."
"I'll send somebody for it." The three of them went out, Eileen and Earl first, the sheriff following. I closed the door and went into the kitchen.

Eastern Is OVC Football Champion

By UNITED PRESS

Eastern Kentucky's unbeaten Maroons stood today as new football champions of the Ohio Valley Conference, thanks in large part to a 100-pound quarterback and a bunch of hard-nosed linemen.

That combination carried Eastern to a 21-0 victory over previously undefeated Western Kentucky at Bowling Green Saturday, making a clean sweep for the Maroons over the other five conference members this season.

Jim Hanlon, from Ghent, Ky., is the lightweight signal caller who directed the Maroons' offense and figured in all three touchdowns himself. He threw a touchdown pass to end Tom Schutte of Newport in the first period, another to halfback Dutch Greene in the second period, and scored himself on a 34-yard punt return in the third period.

Those Eastern linemen, meanwhile, were holding Western's previously potent offense to 67 yards rushing and 54 yards by passing, never letting the Hilltoppers inside the Eastern 40-yard line.

The Maroons, with only Louisville yet to play at Richmond this week, have won seven games and played a 13-13 tie with Toledo.

In other Kentucky college games over the weekend, Kentucky, downed Vanderbilt (19-7), scoring all three touchdowns in the second period. Louisville (undefeated) Maroons, 24-0, Centre defeated Sewanee, 21-7. Murray State lost an OVC tilt to Middle Tennessee, 21-13, and Kentucky State was rapped by Central State of Ohio, 26-12.

Tennessee, 21-13; and Kentucky State was rapped by Central State of Ohio, 26-12.

Louisville's young Cardinals rolled up 18 points on the even younger Morehead Eagles in the first half, and coasted to a 24-0 Homecoming victory. The puncheonless Eagles wound up with a net yards gained of 70 as they took their 18th straight defeat over a two-season span.

Murray scored first on Middle Tennessee, but the Raiders held a 14-6 lead at halftime. Murray scored again in the second half and converted, but Middle Tennessee came within a fourth-period touchdown.

Panama Canal To Be Cleared

BALBOA, Canal Zone 6th—A dipper dredge worked today to clear away the approximately 5,100 cubic yards of rock which slid into the Panama Canal at Gaillard Cut and blocked one-half the channel.

The huge mass of rock and mud tumbled from the north end of Contractors Hill into the vital waterway sometime during Thursday night. It was discovered at dawn Friday by an inspection launch.

The slide narrowed the channel from its normal 300 feet to 125 feet and created a one-way bottleneck in ship traffic.

BIG CHOICE OF MEATS FOR NOVEMBER MEALS

Kentucky housewives will have a wide choice of meat items for their November meals, and plenty of turkey for Thanksgiving, according to the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture and Home Economics.

The Agriculture Marketing Service's list of plentiful foods for November says that supplies of broilers and turkeys, beef and turkeys are heavy. Also in the plentiful class for November are pork-frozen fish and shrimp. Broilers and fryers were marketed in large numbers in October. With chick replacements continuing heavy in early fall, broiler production was expected to continue at a high level well into November. Beef production is heavy because of seasonally heavy cattle marketings, and a see-sawing number of hogs slaughtered has climbed above last year's rate. Large numbers of hogs are being marketed this fall because of the 13 per cent increase in the spring crop.

This year's record turkey crop of 61,045,000 birds is about 9 per cent larger than last year, and retail markets are expected to be amply supplied with both large and small breed turkeys. Other foods expected to be plentiful in November are peas, rice, dry beans, almonds, walnuts, flut-

Tears for the Bride

CHAPTER THIRTY-TWO
FOOTSTEPS sounded on the porch, and the door opened. Behind me Eileen gasped. "Papa!" When I looked up, she was in the embrace of Jake Fortune. I stared at him stupidly. His heavy red face beneath the cream-colored hat held a sober and serious look as he gazed at Earl Seltzman on the floor. Then his gray eyes, wide-spaced, like his daughter's, met mine over her shoulder, and silently asked a question. "Papa, papa," Eileen sobbed, and he held her close. "I had to hit him," I said. "He pulled a gun on me, and he was jittery and ready to shoot. Thanks for slapping my ear door. It gave me a chance to jump him. I stood up wearily. "Earl Fortune frowned. "Earl pulled a gun on you? Why?" "Papa," Eileen sobbed. He patted her shoulder. "You may as well know," I said. "He shot Ralph Hollis—on purpose—and he killed Rex Bishop, because the old man caught him slapping at me." His frown deepened. "But I thought that Judy—" "She's out of it," I said, and I looked around for the telephone. "I've got to get the sheriff out here." Eileen left her father's arms and knelt beside Earl Seltzman. Her fingers caressed his thin, slack face as she murmured, "It's all right, darling, don't you worry." Jake Fortune gazed at me bleakly. "So Earl really tried to kill Ralph?" "I'll tell you about it later. Where's the phone?" "In the kitchen," he shook his head and swore softly. "Watch him," I said. He nodded. The phone was on a shelf above the kitchen sink. I asked for Sheriff John Morrisey and got him almost immediately. "This is Jim Bennett." "Yes," he said quietly. "I'm in bed now. The phone's right beside me." "End of the hunt," I said. "It was Earl Seltzman. You can forget about going to Cleveland. Earl will have a rifle some place, and I'll match the bullet I dug out of the tree, and the bullet in Rex Bishop. I've got Earl out here at Jake Fortune's place." The line was dead for a moment, and then I heard him sigh.
